Model description

The primary objective of this portfolio is to achieve a moderate level of capital growth. The portfolio is diversified across a range of asset classes with low-to medium allocation to funds investing in equities (expected to be no greater than 55%) and other risk assets.

MPS market update

Global markets started 2026 with resilience, extending the rally from late last year despite rising geopolitical tensions and renewed focus on central bank independence. Equity gains broadened beyond mega-cap technology. In the US, the S&P 500 rose 1.4% in January, while the Equal Weight index gained 3.4%, signalling healthier market participation. Europe, the UK and parts of Asia also posted solid returns. Within technology, performance became more selective. Investors rewarded companies that demonstrated tangible returns from AI investment, while others faced pressure despite strong headline earnings. This dispersion reflects a more disciplined market backdrop.

Geopolitics played a central role. US intervention in Venezuela and tensions involving Greenland and Iran weighed on the US dollar and supported oil prices, with Brent crude ending the month around USD 70 per barrel. Precious metals surged, as investors sought protection against policy uncertainty and currency weakness. Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve held rates steady, though political scrutiny added an additional layer of uncertainty. Overall, equities remain supported by earnings, but fiscal risk, geopolitics and policy credibility are likely to drive volatility in the months ahead.
